"It's the man that's a-trying something new that gets laughed at every time. And he is generally right—the rest are wrong. Somebody has got to begin and be guyed like a fool, and hide and starve, and eat his heart out—and then after years and years the rest of the world that was too lazy to do its own thinking comes a-strutting up to pat him on the back and invite him to dinner—and everybody comes in on the chorus: 'I told you so!'"

PITTENTURF NOW REGRETS ESCAPE

Says he was a Fool and Claims he Did not Know of Gordon's Plan to Strike the Sheriff. Confined to Cells.

"Wasn't I a fool to do what I did," said "Duster" Pittenturf this morning in his cell in the county jail where he is now confined.

He was assured that he had described himself correctly and when encouraged to talk further regarding the escape of Gordon, Brannen and himself admitted that he knew the event was to take place but that he was entirely ignorant of Gordon's plan to strike the sheriff. "If I had known anything like that was to be pulled off I would have had something to say," said Pittenturf. "All I had to do with the affair was to come to the door of my cell when I heard Sheriff Fissel open the door of the corridor. I was certainly a fool to get out."

When told that the authorities feel quite hopeful of catching Gordon Pittenturf expressed a desire that he should be returned to prison, evidently feeling that it was Gordon who had gotten him into his present predicament.

MANY CHARGES

Charles H. Wilson has laid charges of assault with intent to kill and of breaking jail, against all of the trio and of burglary against Pittenturf and Brannen.

Even though the two did not take an active part in the assault on Sheriff Fissel it is stated that, knowing it was to occur and being present when it did transpire, they were equally guilty with Gordon.

The first two charges were laid the day after the escape of the prisoners while the burglary charge was entered this morning after Z. J. Peters, of Guernsey had come to town. Evidence in the Peters burglary is being collected and it is felt that there will be no trouble to secure a conviction. With verdicts of guilty in all three of these cases and the conviction in the Hoar case Pittenturf will have quite a term to face, it is prophesied, while Brannen will likely escape more easily owing to its being his first penitentiary term and not having the Hoar case assault and battery and larceny charges to meet.

CONFINED TO CELLS

No risks whatever are being taken at the jail with the two returned fugitives. Pittenturf and Brannen are confined to their cells every hour of the day and night and do not get the exercise and freedom of the corridors which the other prisoners possess. Their cell doors are securely fastened and they have little recreation.

Sheriff Fissel has secured the shackles which have long lain unused in the attic of the jail and, if it is found advisable at any time to allow the men in the corridor, their feet will be chained together. The shackles are less than two feet in length and it will be slow traveling for both if they are compelled to wear them.

GORDON'S WHEREABOUTS

Gordon has been traced by the officers as far as Monterey and it is feared that he may have gotten "railroad accommodations" on the main line of the Western Maryland and that he may now be several hundred miles distant.

He suffered severely from exposure on Monday night and between Cash-town and McKnightstown stopped Guy Keller on the road and asked him for his coat and hat. Mr. Diehl, of course, refused and Gordon came out with the whole story of his escape. He had on only a thin shirt, a pair of trousers and a pair of shoes when he got away and in the penetrating damp air suffered greatly.

Tuesday he stopped at a farm house beyond Fairfield and after putting up a hard luck story secured dinner. He is known to have had a cap when he reached that place but whether or not he had secured a coat in the meantime is not known.

Local officers concerned in apprehending Gordon have spared no pains in spreading broadcast news of the man's escape. Complete descriptions have been furnished railroad detectives throughout this entire section of the country have been advised to watch for the fugitive.

It is not probable that Pittenturf and Brannen will ask for hearings and as a result their cases will likely be given their first trial before Court.

WOMAN LIGHTS THE SMELTER

Large Party of People from Allentown and Vicinity See Start of Operation at Smelter of Copper Mine in West End.

A party of seventy six stockholders and others interested in the Eagle Metallic Copper Co. arrived at the Eagle copper mines at Charming Wednesday morning, where the fires were lighted under the new smelter.

The party left Allentown about 4 p. m. Tuesday in two special cars. Arriving at Harrisburg too late for the regular Cumberland Valley train, the cars were taken to Chambersburg by a special locomotive and were there attached to the regular Waynesboro branch train reaching that town at 5:50.

Wednesday morning two special trolley cars carried the large number of people to Highfield. From Highfield the party walked to the copper mine and smelter and at 9 o'clock Miss Jennie Wickert, daughter of Albert L. Wickert, fiscal agent of the company, applied the match to the smelter and the plant was put in operation.

In the afternoon the party returned to Waynesboro and, Wednesday evening, sat down to a big turkey dinner at the Werner.

In the party are two experts—August Peters, Perth Amboy, and Joseph Peters, Brooklyn—who only a few days ago left the employ of the Guggenheims. They are especially familiar with smelting operations.

Dr. Harry E. Detweiler is chemist of the company. Albert L. Wickert, fiscal agent, is in charge of the party.

With it were, also, Ed. J. Crader, one of the editors of the Allentown Daily City Item, and Britian G. Roth, of the Allentown Chronicle and News, two very clever and capable newspaper men.

The first run from the new smelter was made today.

BEAR SEASON CLOSED

The bear season in Pennsylvania will end with this week and although reports on the shooting of bruin are rather meager Dr. Joseph Kalfbus, the secretary of the State Game Commission, thinks the kills were numerous. In the first place, reasons the doctor, who is an experienced hunter, bears were unusually numerous this year and exceedingly bold. Many farmers complained of their raids on hen coops, bee hives and even into gardens. In some of the mountain counties bears were more numerous than in a decade.

This is the first year in which the use of steel bear traps was prohibited and some controversy over the value of the act of 1911 has arisen. Men who stand for the law say it was prompted by humanitarian considerations and that trapping is not sportsmanship. Others say the boldness of the bears is largely due to the prohibition of the steel traps and agitation to secure repeal of the law may be started next year. The bear season started on October 1.

GOVERNOR CROTHERS TO PROBE LYNCHING

Will Try to Bring Negro's Slayers to Justice.

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 28.—Governor Crothers has interested himself in the investigation of the lynching of King Johnson, alias Davis, colored, who was taken from the Brooklyn, Md., lockup Christmas morning and put to death by unidentified persons.

Johnson shot and killed Frederick Schwab, a white man, at Fairfield last Sunday morning, after a dispute in a saloon.

After a consultation with Judge James B. Brashers and State's Attorney N. H. Green, of Anne Arundel county, the governor authorized the statement that he would insist that the lynchers be brought to justice. Both the officers expressed themselves as being as determined in the matter as is the governor.

The county police are diligently investigating the affair, but their efforts thus far to learn the identity of Johnson's slayers have been futile, it is understood.

WATER TANK FALLS

Two Men Killed and Eight Injured in Mill.

Philadelphia, Dec. 28.—Two men were crushed to death and eight persons, including two women, were seriously injured when a huge water tank fell through the roof of the mill of the R. J. Ederer Thread company, Frankford.

The tank was a new one and had been just erected on the mill. The weight of the thousands of gallons of water caused the walls of the mill to rumble.

The roof beams pulled out and the tank crashed through, carrying a number of the workers in the mill down with the debris. Patrol wagons and ambulances were rushed to the scene and the injured were dug out and carried to the hospital.

The men killed were found beneath the wreck of the tank and floors in the basement. They had been crushed to death.

LA FOLLETTE SOUNDS SLOGAN

Starts on His Campaign Tour Through Ohio.

FOR REPRESENTATIVE RULE

In Anti-Taft Campaign He Tells What the Progressives Have Done in Wisconsin.

Youngstown, O., Dec. 28.—Senator LaFollette, of Wisconsin, began here his campaign in Ohio in opposition to the renomination of President Taft.

The progressive movement and what it has done in Wisconsin was the topic discussed by LaFollette before the business men of this steel and iron community. He declared the progressive movement is a people's movement, a people's cause, and that it took root in the granger movement of the northwest.

"Today," he asserted, "the justice, the wisdom, the economic soundness of every Wisconsin law to which the progressive movement gave being has conquered opposition and compelled the approval of every American community. The nation has profited by Wisconsin's civic evolution."

"It is not claimed for the progressive cause in Wisconsin that it has attained its final destiny, that it has settled all of the questions that vex and trouble thoughtful people everywhere, and cause unrest even among the poor and rich, but we do know that we have achieved certain things. We know that government has been made representative—truly representative."

"We do know that the dire and awful predictions which alarmed honest business in Wisconsin have proved false; that capital has not fled from the state, but is more secure than elsewhere; that state banks, subject to state regulation are safe and failure is unknown; that the street cars, the interurban, the gas, electric light and water rates are undergoing regulation and reduction, and yet, because we have stable industry, the bonds of all our public utilities are selling higher in the markets than those of other states; that railroad rates have been reduced, the services regulated, the complaints of shippers adjusted, and yet the railroads of Wisconsin are more prosperous than in other states because a sense of security prevails everywhere and every producer, every manufacturer knows that his competitors within the scope of state regulation enjoy no secret favor or advantage. The old feeling of class antagonism and distrust is fast giving place to peace, confidence and prosperity."

"It was clearly understood at the outset that we were entering upon a new era; that the wonderful industrial development of the country had outgrown our statutes and constitution; that the problems were complex and intricate in a high degree and that they required profound study and research and the application of the best expert knowledge available."

"Whatever success we have attained in Wisconsin through the enactment of wise, constructive statutes, has been the result of a clear and definite comprehension of the importance of the work as affecting not only the material interests of the state, but the sociological welfare of the people in the broadest application of that term."

"The conditions which prevailed in politics, government and business in Wisconsin fifteen years ago are those which the people in most states and in the nation are facing today."

Senator LaFollette will speak in Norwalk this afternoon and Toledo tomorrow. Tomorrow he will speak at North Baltimore and Dayton. Saturday he will spend in President Taft's home city, Cincinnati, speaking there in the evening.

BAER TO MEET MINERS

Reading Railway Head and Representative of Workers to Confer.

Philadelphia, Dec. 28.—A conference between George F. Baer, president of the Philadelphia and Reading railway, and officials of the United Mine Workers of America, to be held in this city probably on Jan. 2, is expected to result in an understanding that will cause the continuance of peace between the operators and the miners.

John P. White, president of the United Mine Workers; John T. Dempsey, John Fahey and Thomas Kennedy, of districts No. 1, 9 and 7, will attend the conference, at which Mr. Baer may make known the attitude of the operator relative to certain stipulations concerning wages and conditions to form the basis of a new agreement with the miners. The old agreement expires on April 1.

The miners meet in convention in Indianapolis on Jan. 16, when it is anticipated that a decision will be reached over settlements by districts to separate the anthracite from the bituminous situation. A conference regarding the signing of a new agreement will be held either in Philadelphia or New York.

PRESIDENT OF BANK GONE, SO IS $30,000

Sheriff Seizes the Empty Safe and Typewriter.

Philadelphia, Dec. 28.—Residents of Little Italy assembled around a bank at 772 South Seventh street, vowing vengeance upon its president, Joseph E. Mangini, who, it is declared, had absconded with about $30,000 of his depositors' life savings.

Mangini had formerly been connected with his father, Giovanni Mangini, 33 Bleeker street, New York, in the banking business.

Two years ago he opened a bank at the Seventh street address. He was also engaged in the contracting business. It is declared that he had a number of padrones on railroad construction throughout the south.

Mangini's absence for ten days before his depositors clamored for their savings was said to have been on a business trip to the south. But upon his prolonged absence, however, the depositors refused to wait any longer and besieged the clerk. The Italians became infuriated, and had it not been for the presence of Scarlett, a deputy sheriff, the clerk would have met with harm. Scarlett drove the crowd from the bank, and after posting up the attachment of G. Tumminillo, a banker, barred the doors.

Mr. Scarlett seized the safe, which was found to be empty; a typewriter and a number of cases of olive oil and wine stored in the cellar. A portion of the wine is declared to belong to another Italian.

Mr. Tumminillo declared that Mangini had been acting as his agent in selling steamship tickets for Italy. He stated that he gave Mangini over $600 worth of tickets for an Italian liner that sailed from New York last week. The proceeds of the tickets Mangini failed to return, declared Tumminillo.

FREE TRIANGLE WAIST MEN

Proprietors of Burned Factory Where 147 Lives Were Lost Acquitted.

New York, Dec. 28.—The jury in the Triangle Shirtwaist company fire cases acquitted Max Blum and Isaac Harris, proprietors, of the charges of manslaughter for which they were on trial in connection with the destruction of their plant here. One hundred and forty-seven lives were lost at the time of the fire.

The two men were charged specifically with being responsible for the death of Margaret Schwartz, whose body was found with many others at the Washington Place exit of the eighth floor of the factory.

Meets Horrible Death in Breaker.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Dec. 28.—Lawrence Kolhinski, twenty years old, was ground to death at the Delaware and Hudson breaker, at Hudson, when his moving shafts caught in the rapidly moving shafts and drew in his body before he could even make a struggle. Kolhinski was engaged as an oiler and was about his work when he met his end. His jacket was open and a corner of it was caught in the suction. Instantly he was being hurled with the great wheels at a terrific rate. Before friends could reach him death had occurred, and when the machinery was stopped it required some time to get the mangled body from the wheels.

An Innovation in Oil Heaters

The Perfection Smokeless Oil Heater, with its drums enameled in turquoise, is an ornament to any room, whether in the country or city home.

No home is quite complete without a Perfection Oil Heater. It is a necessity in the fall and spring, when it is too warm to start the regular heating apparatus, and too cool to be without heat. In the midst of winter it is often convenient as an auxiliary heater, as there are always some cold corners in a house.

The enameled heater always presents a nice appearance, as the enamel will not tarnish or burn off. It is not an "enamel paint," but it is the same as the enamel of your cooking utensils.

The Perfection is the most reliable and convenient portable heating device you can find. An automatically-locking flame spreader prevents turning the wick high enough to smoke.

Dealers everywhere. Ask yours to show you the Perfection Heater enameled; or write for descriptive circular to any agency of

HOME CURED BACON.

Those who relish home cured bacon will be interested in the following recipe: After the butchering of the animal meat should be allowed to get out of the meat, and for best results it should not be allowed to freeze. Each piece to be cured should be rubbed with salt and allowed to drain overnight. All should then be packed in a clean barrel or large stone jar, the thicker pieces at the bottom. For each 100 pounds of meat there should be weighed out eight pounds of salt, two pounds of sugar and one ounce of saltpetre. This should be dissolved in four gallons of water and poured over the meat cold. The meat should then be weighed with a stone to keep it under the brine. In from five to seven weeks, depending upon the size of the pieces, the meat may be hung up and smoked.

COSTLY CARELESSNESS.

In the raising of hogs all too often the value of an excellent ration is largely or entirely offset by improper quarters. Especially is this true as regards the winter care of brood sows. A farmer with whom the writer was talking the other day in speaking of his past season's operations mentioned losing practically all his little pigs last spring, and in discussing this loss it developed that the trouble was not due to feeding the sows an improperly balanced (largely corn) ration, but to the fact that the shelter provided for the sows left them exposed to the dampness and cold, caused them to pile up, and dead little pigs were the result.

The GREATEST PLAY I EVER SAW

AS TOLD TO
Hugh S. Fullerton

By BILL BERGEN.

Premier Catcher Brooklyn National League Team, and Who is Regarded as One of the Great Backstops of the Country.

Of all the plays I ever saw the greatest was one that Jake Daubert made last season. You may think it odd that the greatest play I ever saw was a ball game for us—but it is true. Daubert made the play, made it perfectly, and yet it cost us the game instead of winning it for us, as it should have done.

That play shows just how much luck there is in baseball. We were playing New York and that team seemed to have something on us—no one knew what. If we beat them playing hitting and everything else, the luck took the game away from us some way. They beat us, I believe, six times in succession in that series and with decent luck we ought to have won at least four of the games. The least slip or failure to pull off a play beat us, and it seemed as if they could make a dozen errors and blunders a game and never lose or let us score. It breaks that way sometimes. The last game of that series we were playing in Brooklyn and when it came down to the ninth inning the score was tied and they had men on first and second with one out. It isn't polite to say who was pitching for us, for some one might think I blame him for the defeat. I don't. It was just the play anyone would make.

At any rate Snodgrass hit a ball fast and outside the plate and sent it over first base so fast that I hardly could see whether it was fair or foul. In fact I think to this day that the ball passed just outside the corner of first base, but the umpire saw it differently and called it fair.

Daubert had been playing back of first and well inside the line, as he did not have to hold up the runner. I was catching and was planning to whip the ball to Jake if the batter missed it and try to catch the runner off first. Maybe that accounts for what followed. Jake was coming up fast to be ready to take a throw from me when the ball was hit. He saw that ball going past, and diving on his side he slid across the base line with his hands stretched as far as he rolled over, and caught the ball as he rolled over. Our pitcher was covering first base as hard as he could—and Daubert, rolling over, snapped the ball into his hands. Right there is where luck cut in. Both runners were tearing around the bases under the idea that the ball had gone on down the foul line into the corner. The catcher failed to stop the runner at third base, and as Daubert rolled over and made his wonderful play—retiring the batter at first—that wild base runner started for the plate. Our pitcher had met the ball at the base while running at top speed and couldn't stop. I saw Daubert leap to his feet. The pitcher couldn't turn in time to throw, but as Daubert jumped to his feet he grabbed the ball out of the pitcher's hands and slammed it at me. As he threw his hand hit the pitcher's arm, the throw went wild, and two runs scored. Crazy base running, and the luck of having his hand touch the pitcher as he threw, ruined the finish of the greatest play I ever saw. And the next day Daubert was roasted by one critic who accused him of bad ball playing.

POET KEMP NOT A HOME BREAKER

Tells Story of His Romance
With Mrs. Sinclair.

HOME WAS NOT HAPPY

Says He Found Upton Wanted a Divorce When He Visited Arden, So He Just Stayed Around.

New York, Dec. 28.—Harry Kemp, the poet, who is living with Mrs. Upton Sinclair in a bungalow at West Point Pleasant, N. J., for which he pays $10 a month, furnished, told the entire story of his romance with the wife of the radical author, Upton Sinclair.

The poet's story of his stay at Arden, where he fell in love with Mrs. Sinclair, was told simply and frankly to inform the world that he did not break up anybody's happy home.

"Now I want to tell this complete story of the romance of Meta and myself," Kemp said.

"It will show us in the true light and disprove the nasty statements Upton has been making. I went down to Arden last July upon Upton's invitation. When I got there I found the Sinclair home was broken up. Upton and Meta had wanted a divorce and had driven her nearly wild by his actions. He showed her no affection. 'Upton, you know, preached free love,' Kemp went on. 'He declared that Meta and he began to read poetry and walk together, and finally grow to love each other. He finally went to Sinclair and asked if he were paying too much attention to Meta, and Sinclair said, 'No, go ahead, and if you can, make her happy.'"

"Then Upton came to me and wanted me to promise that I would play square. He did not know—he came too late. I thought he would realize that he had driven his wife to desperation until she didn't know what she was doing. Meta was not to blame. Upton, who had been a radical, then began to take the advantages of the convention husband. Just as if he had loved his wife and as if I had deliberately alienated her affections.

"Then Meta went to New York. I decided to follow her. I came to New York and went to Meta's mother's home. The next thing we knew Upton came in on us suddenly one evening. We talked awhile and then he went away.

"So we fled and went to Elizabeth. Upton got his divorce case filed. He had detectives on our trail and had a lot of evidence. He thought the testimony was to be sealed and he said a lot of untrue things about us that he thought wouldn't get out. And when I saw that I was to be pictured as a home-breaker I thought I might tell how it seems to me. It may not seem the same way to other people, but I believe that if they think it over they will see that the affair came out the only possible way.

"Upton has changed color many times. He still professes friendship for me. A month or so ago, when I heard he was all worried and felt bad about this, I wrote him a letter saying that we had both been good and bad, and suggested that we did not have any hard feelings. That was before he had testified to what is untrue in his divorce suit. He wrote back that he felt all right about it."

Harry Kemp produced the letter. It follows:

"47 Claremont Avenue, New York, Nov. 25.

"Dear Harry—I received your letter and appreciate your writing. I have never felt any personal anger toward you. I was sure you would see the thing differently in the course of time and realize that I did all I could to keep you out. The subject is necessarily a painful one, and it takes time to wear off the effects. I hope to go abroad soon, and that when we meet again it may be to happier ends. In the meantime I wish you success, and am interested in your work as ever. Sincerely, UPTON SINCLAIR."

Harry Kemp has a weekly allowance of $750 from a Chicago man who is interested in his work. He and Mrs. Sinclair are living on $10 a week. He is making a little money from the sale of poems.

New Trial in Sinclair Divorce.
New York, Dec. 28.—Justice Davis, in the supreme court, followed up his action of a week ago in refusing to confirm the report of William S. Kelley, the referee, who recommended that Upton Sinclair, the author, be granted an interlocutory decree of divorce from Meta Fuller Sinclair, by directing that the case be retried. The justice appointed Marshall S. Marden as referee to hear the testimony.

READY TO ABDICATE THRONE OF CHINA

Imperial Family Have Little Hope of Reconquering Country.

Pekin, China, Dec. 28.—Representative members of the imperial court have signified to Premier Yuan Shi Kai their willingness to agree to an abdication.

The court realizes that there is no hope for it in the retention of three or four detached sections of the country and semi-provinces, and sees a chance to obtain better terms by agreeing to the referendum on the question of form of government.

The Empress Dowager Ye Ho Na La has summoned the leading princes of the imperial clan to meet Premier Yuan Shi Kai and discuss the proposal made at the Shanghai conference.

Yuan Shi Kai realizes that the republican spokesmen at the peace conference at Shanghai are not likely to accept his proposition for a carefully elected assembly representing the entire empire. He is of the opinion that the republicans believe that the time so gained would be to the advantage of his party.

The premier feels certain that he could win several battles with the modern army at his disposal, which is better equipped and greatly superior to the rebel forces, but as he is unable to obtain any loans, he would be unable to reconquer the lost Chinese provinces.

Yuan Shi Kai will in all probability resign after making the best terms possible for the throne. He regrets what he considers to be Tang Shao Yi's desertion. He suggests that Tang Shao Yi might become president of the republic, which is an office he himself would not accept.

Without his knowledge Matthew had loaded the gun, and the boy fired it, taking deliberate aim at his brother's temple.

PROMOTERS LOST $10,000,000 FEE

Offered Rich Reward to Merge Packing Houses.

TWO ATTEMPTS FAILED

Condition of the Money Market Made It Impossible For New York Bankers to Finance the Deal.

Chicago, Dec. 28.—Albert H. Veeder, attorney for Swift & Co., and the first witness called by the government in the trial of the ten Chicago packers, testified that the defendants made two efforts to organize a merger in the summer of 1902 and that their efforts to finance the enterprise were unsuccessful in both instances.

The first plan was to include the Armour, Swift, Morris and Cudahy interests with a capital of $925,000,000, divided as follows:

Bonds, $141,750,000.
Preferred stock, $168,750,000.
Common stock, $612,000,000.

After the promoters had failed to finance this proposition through Kuhn, Loeb & Co., of New York, the plan was changed to provide for a capitalization of $525,000,000, but the condition of the money market made it impossible to finance the modified merger.

Mr. Veeder testified that E. H. Harriman, James Stillman and other New York financiers were to have furnished the capital, and the amount they were to receive as compensation was $10,000,000.

The story of the two proposed mergers was told chiefly by the reading of contracts and agreements, entered into by interested parties, to the jury by counsel for the government, who then offered the documents in evidence.

The late Gustavus F. Swift was to have been president of the merger. Edward Morris and Michael Cudahy were to have been vice presidents, and J. Ogden Armour, chairman of the executive and finance committees.

The witness told of the organization of the National Packing company on March 18, 1903, but denied it had any connection with the proposed merger.

Mr. Veeder will resume his testimony. It is believed that his cross-examination will be brief, as he has been an unwilling witness for the government because of his close relations with the packers since 1885.

Henry Veeder, son of A. H. Veeder, who is said to have acted as secretary for the old packers' pool, known to the government under the name of "Postoffice box No. 247," will be the next witness.

KING GEORGE IN DANGER

Had Narrow Escape From Wounded Tiger In India.

Bombay, India, Dec. 28.—A sensational report that King George had a narrow escape from death while tiger hunting in Nepal was circulated here. The report was told by a native who had accompanied the royal expedition as a game bearer.

Although every precaution possible had been taken to protect the life of his majesty an enormous tiger streaked with blood from several wounds and frantic with pain and rage, leaped upon the elephant from whose back King George did his shooting before it was finally put to death.

Two of the best shots in India were stationed on elephants on each side of the king. Each had fired upon the tiger when it was driven from cover by the horde of game beaters, but their first bullets missed a vital mark.

King George fired first, that honor being accorded to all guests of the maharajah. He missed, and after the beast had been wounded in half a dozen places it made the leap that landed it on the elephant just back of the royal howdah.

The king's nerve remained unshaken as the tiger fell to the ground with two bullets in its head, fired by the marksmen on either side of the king.

BACK SCRATCHERS FOR TAFT

Belated Christmas Gift Finally Gets to White House.

Washington, Dec. 28.—A belated Christmas present to President Taft, in the shape of two "back scratchers" from a Michigan manufacturer, reached the White House.

"Should you have occasion to use them before 1912," said the manufacturer in a letter accompanying the gift, "please entertain the happy thought that Michigan is at your back."

Xmas Food Kills 18 Nomads.
Berlin, Dec. 28.—Eighteen inmates of the Berliner Municipal Shelter for the Homeless died during the night from poisoning and others to a considerable number are dying or seriously ill.

In the institution were 4114 destitute men, some of whom brought scraps of extra food to give a Christmas touch to the frugal meal of bread and soup served to them. This extra delicacy consisted in many cases of spoiled smoked herring, of which a large number partook.

Died on Wedding Anniversary.
Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Dec. 28.—One year ago Frank Conosky was married to Miss Bertha Long, of this city. At the hour on which they stood before the altar Conosky was stricken suddenly ill and died in a few seconds. He complained very little of ill health.

The KITCHEN CABINET

I HAVE but one lamp by which my feet are guided, and that is the lamp of experience. I know no way of judging of the future but by the past.

SOME REMINDERS.

Don't fail to put up some quince honey. Pare and grate five large quinces. To one pint of boiling water add five pounds of sugar. Stir over the fire until the sugar is dissolved; add the quince and cook twenty minutes. Turn into glasses. When cold it has about the color and consistency of honey.

See that there is plenty of grape juice in the fruit closet for winter and summer use. It is one of the most valuable drinks for the invalid. Prepare it by removing the well-washed grapes from their stems, add water to just show among the grapes, and simmer until thoroughly scalded. Drain, and return to the fire and sugar to taste and put up boiling hot. See that the bottles are well sealed by dipping them into melted paraffin. If you have a peck of small beet in the garden, just can them for winter use. Boil and remove the skins, then put into cans and pour over hot vinegar that has been sweetened a little. Seal and keep in a dark place. Change a salmon salad by adding a chopped sour pickle to it or a little coconut, of course unsweetened.

Fresh coconuts may be peeled of their dark inner skin and ground first with the coarse knife of the meat grinder, then put again through the cutter, using a finer one. This makes the nut fine enough, when mixed with sugar and dried slowly in the warming oven, to take the place of the boughten package variety, and at a quarter the cost.

Use a flat paint brush two or three inches wide to dust books. It is easily and quickly used, and does the work better than a cloth.

A small wooden skewer which the butcher puts through your meat will make a fine dirt remover. Wrap a cloth around the end and use in the corners of windows when washing them, and in all crevices hard to reach. The tidy housewife is known by the way she keeps the out-of-the-way places.

Pieces of glass that just fit over the dresser top and covers the lace or linen scarf keeps it and the dresser always dainty, as the glass is so quickly cleaned.

In Kitty's Absence

Mrs. Emmons sighed deeply. "What's the matter, my dear?" asked Emmons, looking a bit anxiously across the breakfast table. "Don't you feel well?"

"Oh, yes, I'm feeling well. I was just wondering what I should do with myself. Now that the house is thoroughly cleaned and in order once again after all Kitty's sewing, I don't seem to have anything on hand."

"You still have me," said Emmons. "I don't believe one sock of mine was darned all the time Kitty was at home. As an all absorbing occupation, Kitty certainly is a wonder. There never seemed to be a day all summer when you weren't doing something for Kitty. I don't see how there could have been anything left to mend, make or make over for her when the season ended."

"You don't appear to realize that a girl going away to boarding school needs a complete outfit," remarked Mrs. Emmons a little stiffly. "I'm sorry if you've found any holes in your socks."

"I was only joking," said Emmons hastily. "And I know, my dear, that you must feel quite lost without Kitty. I—well, really, I miss her myself. It seems a trifle too quiet around the house, doesn't it?"

"Indeed it does," Mrs. Emmons smiled at him a little mistily. "I wish—there's the door bell. Will you go?"

In a moment Emmons returned with a letter in his hand. "A special delivery from Kitty. I signed for you," he said. "I suppose it's nothing serious."

"Read it aloud," said Emmons.

"Dearest mother," read Mrs. Emmons, "I'm sending this by special delivery, for I want you to get it as soon as possible. We are going to have a fancy dress party Halloween, and I must have a costume. I wish you would think up several and write me about them and then I can decide which idea I like best, and then you can make it for me. Please think of something new and striking. How lucky I am to have such a clever mother! You see, I'm letting you know early so you won't have to hurry too much."

"How considerate!" murmured Kitty's father.

"Well, it is considerate."

"Didn't I say so?" asked Emmons. His wife threw him a scornful look as she resumed the letter. "The table here is awfully tressome. I wish you'd have Nora make me a big fruit cake. That keeps so well and is so wholesome."

"Indeed?"

"Now, if you're going to interrupt all the time I'll read the rest to myself. And, mother dear, if you could find time to make a lot of your delicious sand tarts I'd just love them. The girls are all crazy about them."

"I don't know how I ever did it, for I'm careful of my clothes, but I have a big three-cornered tear in my foulard frock. You are so wonderful at mending. I'm sending it home for repairs. Please get it back before next Saturday, as our crowd is going to the matinee, and I want to wear it. Please ask dad if I may go to the matinee very Saturday. We divide the price of the chaperon's ticket so it doesn't cost very much, and you know the theater is very educational."

"I've decided that I need a gimp for my evening dresses. Will you please make one this week, for I need it awfully? I'd like something elaborate in tuckered lace or chiffon."

"I'm getting along splendidly in my studies, but I wish you'd ask dad if I may be excused from geometry. I don't think any one who isn't going to teach needs higher mathematics, do you? I'm going to send you an essay that I'm writing now. I wish you'd look it over carefully and suggest any changes you think it needs. I want to get a high mark in my English this year and I know if you correct my theme it will be a perfectly good essay."

"Well, goodbye for this time. I send bushels of love and I hope you and dad don't miss me too much. Oh, yes, you will please see if you can find my roller skates in the attic? The girls skate in the gym on rainy days."

"Well, I think you won't suffer for lack of occupation for awhile yet," said Emmons. "And my socks can wait another month or so."

"Aren't you ashamed! Dear little Kitty!"

"Of course I am ashamed, and she needn't take geometry and she can go to the matinee every day if she wants to."

"Why, Thomas?"

"Well, isn't she my dear little Kitty as well as yours?"

Positive Proof Wanted.

A Scotsman went to London for a holiday. Walking along one of the streets, he noticed a bald-headed chemist standing at his shop door, and inquired if he had any hair restorer.

"Yes, sir," said the chemist, "step inside, please. There's an article I can highly recommend. Testimonials from great men who used it. It makes the hair grow in 24 hours."

"A week," said the Scot, "ye can gie the top of your head a bit rub wit, and I'll look back the morn and see if ye're tellin' the truth."—Ideas.

From the Ash Tray.

Even the ash of hubby's cigar can be utilized. In what way? Why, as a polisher for gold watches, bracelets and rings, let alone chains and a multitude of other trinkets. This comes from a prominent jeweler, so it must be nearly correct. He even goes to the extent of carrying with him a small case in which he preserves all the ashes from the cigars which he smokes. He says that the grain is so fine that it leaves no mark that is discernible to the naked eye.

BOOKSTAND SENT BY MAIL

Contains Forty Volumes of Shakespeare, But Whole Package Weighs Only Pound and a Half.

A revolving bookstand, six inches high, containing the complete works of Shakespeare in forty volumes, the whole weighing only one and one-half pounds, was the unique package which passed through the registry division of the postoffice yesterday.

The tiny volumes themselves measured two and one-half inches, and were about one-eighth of an inch in thickness. Although the print was extremely fine, it could be easily read.

The case was surmounted with a small marble bust of the Avon bard, and was addressed to Longview, Tex., from Glasgow, England.

The parcel was opened by Hans Glatta, special customs examiner of mail importations, who is inclined to believe the expressed valuation of the publisher, $11.50, is too low, and a new appraisement will be made.

The miniature books were bound and printed in every detail after the fashion of editions of ordinary size, with gilt print and leather binding.

The articles attracted so much attention that Henry Smith, in charge of the registry division, exhibited it to the corps of women, under Mrs. T. J. Atkins, who were selling hospital tags in the postoffice. The device was thereupon declared "Just too cute" no less than fifty times.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Fortune Cast Up by the Sea.

A shoal of sperm whales, numbering 37 in all, were stranded on a small sandy island named Perkins island, on the northwest coast of Tasmania, recently. A syndicate was formed to exploit these unfortunate castaways, and nearly every whale was found to contain ambergris, a valuable substance greatly in demand amongst perfumers and others. The shareholders expect to realize a profit of between $50,000 and $75,000—a nice little sum to be cast up by the sea.—Wide World Magazine.

Don't Pull Out The Gray Hairs

A Simple Remedy Will Bring Back the Natural Color

"Pull out one gray hair and a dozen will take its place" is an old saying, which is, to a great extent, true, if no steps are taken to stop the cause. When gray hairs appear it is a sign that Nature needs assistance. It is Nature's call for help. Gray hair, dull, lifeless hair, or hair that is falling out, is not necessarily a sign of advancing age, for there are thousands of elderly people with perfect heads of hair without a single streak of gray.

When gray hairs come, or when the hair seems to be lifeless or dead, some good, reliable hair-restoring treatment should be resorted to at once. Specialists say that one of the best preparations to use is an old-fashioned "sage tea" which our grandparents used. The best preparation of this kind is Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, a preparation of domestic sage and sulphur, scientifically compounded with later discovered hair tonics and stimulants, the whole mixture being carefully balanced and tested by experts.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is clean and wholesome and perfectly harmless. It refreshes dry, parched hair, removes dandruff and gradually restores faded or gray hair to its natural color.

Don't delay another minute. Start using Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur at once and see what a difference a few days' treatment will make in your hair.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists. People's Drug Store special agent for Gettysburg, Pa.

DO You Want to Read a New Kind of a Love Story? Here it is in

The Girl From His Town

By Marie Van Vorst

IN this altogether charming and delightful story about to appear in serial form in this paper, Miss Van Vorst has taken a young man out of a Montana mining town and dropped him down unceremoniously in the midst of London's smart set. There he sees and hears and meets Letty Lane, the reigning comic opera success. It is she who is The Girl From His Town, for once upon a time she sang in a church choir on Sundays and on week-days served ice cream soda water at the corner drug store.

It is a clever and dashing story that will leave you happy and satisfied, for it is told with an animation that makes you see vividly through the author's eyes and her picturesque descriptions.
